

Rev. Travis Dorman
Church of the Lamb, Keezletown, VA
Clergy Nominee for Diocesan Council

Travis Dorman lives in his hometown of Elkton, Virginia. He and his wife, Andrea attended Church of the Incarnation (Harrisonburg, VA) before becoming one of the families to plant Church of the Lamb. Travis served as the Rector's Warden on the Parish Council for the first six years of Lamb's existence before being ordained as a Deacon in July of 2020. He also led the capital campaign for the church's purchase of a 31-acre farm which currently includes a parsonage and will hopefully serve as the location of a church building in the future.

Travis works for a manufacturer in the stormwater industry where he manages the water quality market for the eastern half of the US, developing and implementing devices that remove pollutants from rainwater in order to protect local waterways. He has a BS in Social Science and Secondary Education from James Madison University and is slated to graduate in December with an MBA concentrating in Executive Leadership from the same institution.

Travis and his wife, Andrea have a small farm that they enjoy with four vibrant children: Stella (8), Jay (7), Jeremiah (6), and Ezra (2). Travis also volunteers as a ski patroller and enjoys hunting, fishing, cycling, golfing, hiking, and travelling with his family.
